In writing this past week, I wanted to focus on "small moments" for our writing. What better way to inspire our writers than to teach about small moments writing? Although, I thought my kids were heading in the right direction with their pieces, I just felt like their stories were missing something... They were missing depth, heart, and voice.

Small moments writing for big impact with narratives

Small moment stories are when an author takes a true story from his/her life and instead of telling the whole story, s/he tells a small part of the story and stretches it across pages. It is important to teach writers to hold these moments in their heads as they stretch their one moment across a sequence of several pages.

I have been using the same writing unit for the past 5+ years with my first graders and it has yet to let me down. I wanted to share the steps I have my students take when introducing writing personal narratives through small moments. Step One: What is a Small Moment? To kick off our unit, I introduce what a small moment is with this anchor chart:

Once a child writing prodigy, Jessica finds herself all grown up and desperate to be considered one of the greatest writers of all time. So when a major Hollywood studio hires her to rewrite "Harry Potter," one of the most popular sagas of all time, she sees no better way. But first, convinced that her "abnormal" background might stand in the way of her writing something that "normal" people can relate to, Jessica quickly leaves Hollywood in a quest to immerse herself in how "the other side" lives. It doesn't take long, however, for her to realize that becoming common isn't as simple as she thought it would be. And before she can write "FADE OUT" she must decide if she is really willing to pay the price to achieve true greatness.

This book provides teachers of the early elementary classroom resources for the entire year of writing instruction using a student self-checklist method. There are six complete writing units included as well as three sets of mentor texts. Each unit includes a pacing guide and all paper templates to be copied and used with students. The sets of mentor texts provide achievable examples for students on the same paper that they will be using! Students learn to assess their own work, revise the content of their pieces, add valuable and meaningful details to their work, and give constructive feedback to their peers. The units included in this text are: Personal Narratives, Small Moments, Writing For Readers, Opinion Writing (Letter Structure), "How To" Books, and "All About" Books. There are mentor texts for the "How To" and "All About" units, as well as for teaching students about beginning, middle, and end. This guide will revolutionize writing instruction in your classroom. By using paper with rubrics included, students gain independence over improving their craft!
